

The 5th Annual Meeting of the Greek Pediatric & Adolescence Gynecology (PAG) society was held on October 6-8, 2017 in Athens. The meeting had a very interesting program with sessions about endocrinology, common gynecological problems during childhood and adolescence, PCOS, oncology in younger age, HPV prevention, new choices for contraception, Disorders of sex Development (DSD) and many more. A special session was contributed to new researchers, who could present their work and announce their outcomes.

The meeting had a participation of 472 enrolments, and 84 abstracts.

All three days the congress center was filled with specialists and fellows all determined to be properly informed and work together in order to make a difference to the health of girls and young women. Greek's PAG society is growing constantly .
